A good marriage is hard—
And yet God is present and faithful.

Those who can intentionally make time to cultivate a more loving and generative marriage can find great reward for their efforts. In the process, they become a real blessing to a world that yearns to see joy, fidelity and respect embodied.
Marriages grow through love but it is skill-building that provides the structure to maintain that love for the long haul. This seminar, developed out of the Savage’s marriage journey, will offer just that. Self-described as being married 33 years, 25 of them happily, the Savages learned many lessons while turning around their hurting relationship. After that experience, they committed to share what they learned in order to empower and encourage couples with the skills necessary to help them move forward with a renewed vibrancy.

Mark and Jill Savage are passionate about encouraging, educating, and equipping families. After serving in church ministry for 20 years, the Savages are now meeting the needs of families as authors and speakers. Known for their honesty, humor, and practical teaching, Mark and Jill bring hope and encouragement to every audience. You can find them at www.JillSavage.org.
